

Ken White Bio (short)

Mr. Ken White is the Director of Test and Evaluation for Naval Surface Warfare Center, Port Hueneme Division. He serves as an enterprise wide technical expert in Test and Evaluation, Air and Missile Defense Tactics and employment, lethality assessment as well as Capability Based Test and Evaluation and Mission Thread assessments. His specific expertise; collaboratively integrating test objectives, measurement sciences and test design to produce actionable knowledge that supports rigorous decision-making for Navy Surface Combat Weapon Systems development and fielding. After 24 years of active duty service, he retired from the US Navy at the Rank of Master Chief Petty Officer and joined the NAVSEA team in 2007.

He holds a B.S. in Organizational Management and Economics from University of La Verne, La Verne, California.

Mr. White is a member of the International Test and Evaluation Association as well as the Society of Naval Engineers.